

Cari lettori, le contestazioni mosse al concorso per l'ingresso in magistratura attualmente in corso mi inducono a mostrarvi che diversi mondi esistono, anche se è impensabile che essi possano entrare nella nostra cultura.

Mi riferisco all'ingresso in magistratura in Inghilterra, ove la Supreme Court conta dodici giudici (d'altronde, negli Usa i giudici della Supreme Court sono nove, ma di nomina politica) e i giudici della High Court sono appena sopra i 100.

La massima parte delle controversie è appannaggio di altri organi giudiziari e quindi di altri giudici: chi è interessato e ha tempo legga il bollettino della Judicial Appointments Commission, ma legga anche gli allegati dove è precisato come i candidati alle varie nomine debbono presentarsi!

Vi accludo il bollettino e vi saluto cordialmente.

Maurizio Lupoi
